SMU powered up to celebrate its 18th Patron's Day (PD18) on 26 January and to welcome Singapore President Madam Halimah Yacob, on her inaugural visit as SMU's third Patron.

President Halimah toured the Festival Grounds on Campus Green and met and chatted with SMU students, performers, makers and merchants, as well as advocates behind the eight social causes that PD18 adopted. The support for these social causes and opening the event to the public were conceived to make meaningful impact, in line with SMU Vision 2025 to be a “University for the City” through collaborations with partners and neighbours.

In this spirit, Mdm Halimah penned her wish for SMU – “Use your power for good”, on a decorative ball which was later placed on a centrepiece display. Her message aligned with the PD18 theme “I.AM.POWER (I empower)”.

After the tour, SMU Patron viewed an exhibition on The University’s key milestones and attended a dinner at the SMU Hall together with some 300 guests comprising SMU trustees, advisory board members, senior management, students and alumni. Guests at the dinner were entertained by informative videos, and performances by SMU students and alumni.

In his welcome remarks, SMU Chairman Mr Ho Kwon Ping introduced Mdm Halimah as a true Superwoman, who had overcome many challenges in life to achieve success in several fields and who actively supports numerous social causes. “Madam Halimah, we warmly welcome you as the third Patron of SMU. You are indeed a role model for our students and everyone in our community of how we can transform to be the best we can for ourselves and to do the best we can for others – such is the theme of our Patron’s Day this year,” he said.

SMU President Professor Arnoud De Meyer, explained how the themes of Patron’s Day supported SMU’s long-term Vision 2025: “Today challenges us all to imagine the possibilities of having superhuman powers to be the best we can be for the greater good. This reflects the goal of SMU’s Vision 2025 to become a great university that ‘imagines better’ and to make meaningful impact on Singapore and the world,” he said.

Over at the Campus Green, the evening continued late into the night with a magnetic show that featured talented students and alumni groups such as Samba Masala, City Samba, Eurhythmix and Eluminix, SMU's very own undergrad Jasmine Sokko, Sing! China second runner-up Joanna Dong and singer-songwriter Gentle Bones.

Joanna also debut her new original song - 珊珊到访 – a song about good fortune and how things are worth the wait. You can watch her performance here.

There was also a Carnival of seven exciting games and activities, a Makers' Market featuring 14 vendors and 14 F&B merchants offering tantalising treats. It was a festival of fun, right in the heart of the city, drawing an enthusiastic crowd of hundreds of people from the SMU community and general public.
