SMU Founding Chairman Ho Kwon Ping to step down after 25 years of distinguished leadership

To be succeeded by business leader Piyush Gupta from January 2023

Singapore – 17 August 2022 (Wednesday) – Mr Ho Kwon Ping (何光平), Chairman of the Singapore Management University (SMU) Board of Trustees (BOT), will step down on 11 January 2023 after an illustrious 25 years of distinguished leadership. Mr Piyush Gupta (高博德), currently a member of the SMU BOT, will succeed Mr Ho as the new Chairman of SMU from 12 January 2023.

Mr Ho's visionary leadership redefined Singapore's university landscape

Mr Ho Kwon Ping has made long lasting contributions to SMU in laying a strong foundation and steering SMU to become the distinctive and world-renowned university that it is today, redefining the landscape of higher education in Singapore in the process.

Mr Ho had accepted the Government's invitation in 1997 to create Singapore's third university as the Chairman of the SMU BOT. Mr Ho, together with former Deputy Prime Minister Dr Tony Tan, defined the first principles of the University – one that focuses on excelling in management and the social sciences; delivering a holistic and broad-based education that would result in well-rounded, initiative-taking young men and women; and instilling a strong sense of personal and social responsibility. These distinctive features, including an address in the heart of the city, set SMU apart in the tertiary education landscape in Singapore. In 2000, the University, which was Singapore's first publicly funded autonomous university, and also the first university modelled after American-style institutions, welcomed its first batch of 306 students.

For his contributions in founding and establishing SMU, Mr Ho was awarded the Meritorious Service Medal in 2009. In 2017, he was given one of the nation's highest honours – the prestigious Distinguished Service Order (Darjah Utama Bakti Cemerlang) award – in the National Day Awards.

Mr Ho is credited for his push to broaden the University beyond being just a business school, and to take a more expansive notion of 'management' rather than 'business management'. Under his visionary leadership and skilful stewardship, Mr Ho has led SMU to grow from just having a School of Business into a vibrant and dynamic university with over 12,000 students (and over 36,000 alumni) across eight schools focusing on accountancy, computing and information systems, economics, law, social sciences, and their intersections. SMU is also internationally recognised for its world-class research, with an emphasis on rigorous, high-impact, multi- and interdisciplinary research that addresses issues of global relevance, impacting business, government and society.

After having crafted SMU's first vision in 1998, Mr Ho had remarked in 2013 that SMU had reached a critical inflection point and that it was timely the University charts its way forward with a new Vision 2025, which was later launched in 2014. Mr Ho's passion and a strong advocacy for internationalisation also led to the setting up of the SMU International Advisory Councils from 2017 to establish and strengthen SMU's collaboration and engagement with the government, academic and business communities in the region. To date, seven Councils with 70 members collectively have been set up in China, Indonesia, Malaysia, Myanmar, the Philippines, Thailand and Vietnam, through which SMU is showcasing its thought leadership and making a regional impact.

Mr Ho Kwon Ping said, “It has been one of the most significant journeys of my life to have been part of the team of visionary people from faculty to students, management to trustees, who believed that we could make a difference for young Singaporeans. My guiding principle from the very beginning to now, is that nothing can hold us back from achieving our greatest dreams, except our own self-limiting fear of failure, innovation, change. We created a vision of what an SMU education should be, and then day by day, piece by piece, we collectively executed that vision. I retire now with the deepest confidence that what we put in place over the last 25 years, will be a solid foundation upon which an even bolder, idealistic vision can become reality.”

Leadership transition at SMU is well on its way

Mr Piyush Gupta has been Chief Executive Officer (CEO) and Director of DBS Group since 2009. He has also been a member of the SMU BOT since 12 January 2022.

Mr Piyush Gupta, DBS CEO and SMU Chairman-designate, said, “In these fast-changing, disruptive times, universities play a key role, not just in leading and shaping thinking through cutting-edge research, but also in training our young people in multi-disciplinary ways of problem-solving. SMU excels in these areas with its focus on providing holistic, transformative and integrative education. The university’s close partnership with business and the community is also a key strength. Kwon Ping, and the first generation of pioneers, have set an extraordinary benchmark of success, and I look forward to building on their tremendous achievements, working with the Board of Trustees and university leadership to take SMU to the next level.”

Professor Lily Kong, SMU President, said, “We are deeply grateful to Kwon Ping for his passion, commitment and remarkable leadership as the Founding Chairman of the SMU Board of Trustees. Beyond developing the institution from scratch, he has given the SMU Management team – past and present – tremendous guidance and support as the University grew from an ‘infant’ to a ‘young adult’. The University is deeply indebted to him for his wisdom and counsel. During his term as Chairman, Kwon Ping has also personally touched the lives of many in our SMU community – faculty, staff, students, alumni and their family members. We sincerely thank him for his selfless dedication to Singapore education and SMU.”

“I am pleased to welcome Piyush as the next Chairman of the SMU Board of Trustees. On behalf of my management team, we look forward very much to working with Piyush and the Board, as we steer the University in its next phase of growth,” Professor Kong added.

Minister for Education Mr Chan Chun Sing expressed appreciation for Mr Ho’s contributions: “I thank Kwon Ping for his many years of dedicated service to SMU. As the founding Chairman of the SMU Board of Trustees, he has played an instrumental role in establishing SMU as Singapore’s first autonomous university. He led the development of the university in the heart of the city, and shaped SMU’s holistic broad-based education, including the SMU-X initiative and its multi and inter-disciplinary programmes, which has produced cohorts of distinctive SMU graduates. I look forward to working with Piyush and am confident that he will build on Kwon Ping’s good work to take SMU to greater heights.”
